15. Read the paragraph given below and interpret.

India has been extremely successful in holding together and maintaining its unity and integrity. India was seen a fit case for break-up given its extreme diversities and the fact that it has not done so, is a valuable lesson for many other countries.

OR

Read the paragraph given below and interpret.

India was forced to open up and 'liberalise' its economy by allowing freer flow of foreign capital and goods into India. On the other hand, new social groups asserted themselves politically for the first time, and finally religious nationalism and communal political mobilisation became important features of our political life. All this put the Indian society into great turmoil, we are still coming to grips with these changes and adapting ourselves to them.
